NEXT TWO MONTHS WILL MARK CRISIS, RECOVERY EFFORT

States General Hugh S. Johnson, Who Warns Need of Quick Response

APPEAL BY PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Calls On Business To Aid in Government Program

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21.—Warning that industry and business must respond quickly to President Roosevelt's appeal for higher wages, General Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, today declared the next 30 or 60 days will be the crisis in the administration's efforts to put the country back on its feet.

In that period, he said, wages and purchasing power must be boosted in line with commodity prices or the entire recovery plan will be threatened with collapse.

"Cost will continue to increase and prices will have to also," he said. "Every time in the past there has been a rapid increase in prices, there has been a lag in wages."

"But now, the distortion of increased prices is so rapid and the lag of purchasing power so great, it is plain we cannot stage industrial recovery without an increase in wages."

"It is up to the employers. If they do not respond, there will be inability on the part of the public to buy the products of industry."

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21.—The text of President Roosevelt's personal appeal to all employers to enter a voluntary agreement with the government to abide by the administration's higher wages and shorter hour codes, which will be mailed to every employer throughout the country between now and July 27th, follows:

"To every employer:

"1. This agreement is part of a nation-wide plan to raise wages, create employment and thus increase the purchasing power and restore business. That plan depends wholly on the united action of all employers. For this reason I ask you as an employer, to do your part by signing.

"2. If it turns out the above agreement bears unfairly on any group of employers, they can have that straightened out by presenting promptly their proposed code on fair competition."

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21.—President Roosevelt today called upon industry and business to aid the government's recovery program by restoring purchasing power to the masses through a general increase in wages and adoption of a wage minimum and working hour code.

The President appealed to the industrial employers throughout the nation to agree, voluntarily, to the code drawn up by Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator and approved by the President last night. This code, designed to relieve unemployment and maintain purchasing power of the people at an equitable level with increased prices, calls for:

1. An increase in salaries by an equitable readjustment of all pay schedules.

2. A 35 hour work week and a minimum wage of 40c an hour for industrial workers; a 40 hour week with a minimum weekly wage ranging from $12 to $15 for so-called "white collar and mercantile classes."

3. A check on profiteering by no increase in prices above those of July 1st, except to meet actual increases in production, replacement or invoice cost of merchandise since July 1, 1933, or increased taxes due to the agricultural relief program.

4. No reduction in the hours of any store or service operation to below 52 hours in any one week, unless such hours were less than 52 before July 1st, 1933, in which case there would be no reduction in such hours at all.

BLAME MECHANICAL DEFECTS

Harrisburg, July 21.—Mechanical defects in automobiles caused more automobile accidents in Pennsylvania in June than in any other month of the last two years, a statement released by the Department of Revenue showed today. Twelve persons were killed, 383 non-fatally injured and 613 cars were damaged to the extent of $55,700 in the 387 accidents of this type reported.

AGREEMENT REACHED

Lansdale, July 21.—An agreement between Governor Gifford Pinchot, county authorities, union leaders and hosiery plant officials, today brought peace to the Lansdale region where battles between strikers and police were climaxed by two shootings yesterday afternoon. No one was seriously injured. Twenty state police stood guard today as approximately 1,000 strikers paraded in the vicinity of the Dextdale Hosiery Mill, the scene of the disorders and gun battles. Two other hosiery mills have been closed here by the strike. Although detectives paraded about the Dextdale plant they made no attempt to stop strike breakers from entering the mill. Under an agreement reached last night, Sheriff H. Levr, of Montgomery County withdrew 50 deputies who have patrolled the area for the past week and gave the state police complete authority. Local police also have withdrawn.

STATE NEWS

LOCK HAVEN.—(INS)—The horse patrol of the State Game Commission, inaugurated in May, round up their men where patrolmen on foot have no chance.

When several members of the horse patrol noticed three men in the vicinity of Orviston, Center County, carrying high-powered rifles and knapsacks they became suspicious. Investigation disclosed the knapsacks were filled with venison.

The men, caught with the goods, showed the officers the hiding place of their kill, a spike buck, and on being taken to Bellefonte, entered pleas of guilty to illegal deer killing before a bellefonte squire and were fined $100 each.

BACH ADJUDGED GUILTY; DEATH IS RECOMMENDED

Counsel for "Big Slim" Files Motion for New Trial

JURY OUT ONE HOUR

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Richard (Big Slim) Bach, 29, of Philadelphia, was found guilty of the murder of Rose McCloskey, 19, Philadelphia sales girl, by a jury of 12 men who recommended the death penalty here today. Sentence was not imposed by Judge Harry S. McDevitt.

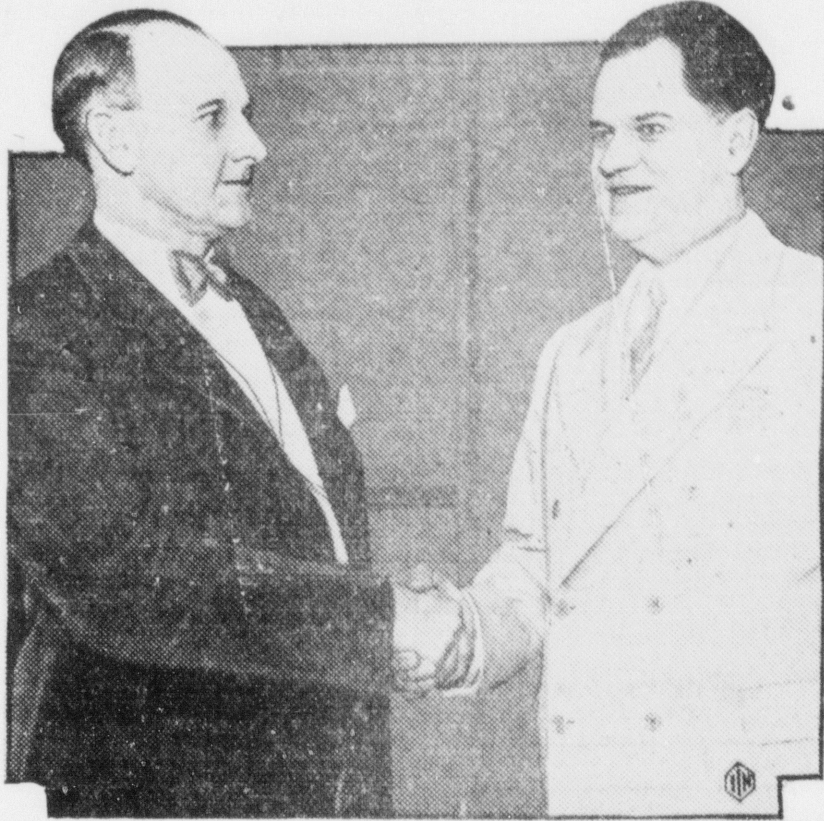

The youth, who voiced absolute denials that he committed the murder while on the stand in his own defense, heard the verdict in silence.

The jury returned the verdict shortly after 10 a. m. (e. d. t.). Immediately after hearing the verdict, Harold H. Johns, counsel for the defendant, filed a motion for a new trial.

The pretty 5 and 10c store sales girl was battered to death with a rock while defending her honor against her slayer, who disposed of her companion, Dennis Boyle, 30, by knocking him unconscious with a huge stone. The girl's body, nude from the waist down, except for stockings, was found in a secluded section of Fairmount Park, where she had been with her lover on January 5th. Boyle, who lingered between life and death for months with a compound fracture of the skull, was one of the Commonwealth's principal witnesses against the gangling slayer.

Although taken into custody shortly after the crime, because his description matched that of a prowler seen in the vicinity a short time before the crime, Bach was successful in obtaining his freedom. Persistent efforts on the part of detectives revealed a new clue which culminated in Bach's arrest and alleged confession after 24 hours of questioning.

STEEL WILL NOT ONLY HOLD ITS OWN, BUT RISE

Is Opinion of Executives of Steel Producing and Fabricating Plants

YOUNGSTOWN DISTRICT

By William K. Terry
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 21.—(INS)—Steel production in the Youngstown district during the last half of this year not only will hold the gains made during the first six months, but also will rise to higher levels, in the opinion of executives of district steel producing and fabricating plants.

The prediction was made by the valley production had almost completely recovered the ground it had lost during the months of the depression and operated at a rate regarded as a good figure in normal times.

Increased car-loadings, heavy auto sales, and the re-employment of thousands out of work a few months ago were cited as the basis for the optimistic outlook for the second half of the year.

The advance in the car-loadings, according to the executives, means that the railroads soon must purchase more steel for repairs. Greater employment, by the same token, means that more people will be able to replace their old and worn automobiles for new ones.

"Of course," said B. F. Fairless, executive vice-president of the Republic Steel Corp., "it's hard to predict several months in advance, but I'm optimistic and think that steel production will continue at its present high rates during the remainder of 1933."

"Conditions are entirely different now than they were a year ago," he commented. "We are pleased with present mill schedules, and, unless something over which we have no control crops up, we should have a good second half."

An official of the Ohio works of the Carnegie Steel Co. declared that the railroads expected to see a great up-lift in business in the near future.

"If they didn't," he added, "they wouldn't be repairing so many cars." William H. Foster, chairman of the board of directors of the General Fireproofing Co., large fabricator, said he believed all business would continue to improve.

"Considering everything, business will be a lot better soon," Foster declared. "We were among the last to feel the depression and are one of the last to be rid of its effects. A tremendous amount of buying power has been released lately, according to the number of automobiles sold. This buying will ease us over the usual dull summer months, and regular fall and winter consumption will take care of the rest of the last half."

Similar views were held by W. C. Conger, vice-president in charge of sales of Truscon Steel Corp., and Severn P. Ker, board chairman of the Sharon Steel Hoop Co.

Despite the usual falling off during the summer months, Ker said "I don't think there will be much of a slump, if any, during the latter half of 1933."

"In good years, there usually is a slump in July and August, but there isn't now."

"I think that steel purchased by the railroads for repairs will enable local plants to advance production. Repairs have to be made because coal and grain have yet to be moved."

Conger is one of the most optimistic of the steel makers.

"There's no doubt in my mind but that business will continue to pick up," he stated. "I believe that we'll enjoy a better half than we did during the last six months. Everything's going up. The upswing really hasn't started yet. Compared to production during the first half, business for the next six months will be a lot better."

A recent guest of Miss Margaret Perry was Miss Verna Mather, Langhorne.

THREE VISITING TEAMS CHALK UP VICTORIES

A. O. H. Wins at Parkland; Hulmeville Downs The Bristol A. A.

"ODDIES" HAVE A WIN

Lower Bucks County League Results of last night's games: A. O. H., 5; Parkland, 0; Hulmeville, 7; Bristol A. A., 1; Odd Fellows, 9; Langhorne, 0 (Forfeit).

Schedule for tonight: PARKLAND at A. O. H.

Usually baseball teams play better ball on their home field than they do when they are visiting clubs. But the Lower Bucks County League is different. Last night the three visiting teams turned in victories to make it eleven straight games in which the home club was defeated.

On Sullivan's field last night, Hulmeville A. A. beat the Bristol A. A. nine, 7-1. The winners made nine hits while the losers clubbed only three.

The Bristol club introduced a new hurler to the fans in the person of "Lefty" Diehm. Diehm hurled well enough to win any ball game with the proper support. His mates continually kept him in hot water and not one of the Hulmeville runs was earned.

"Ike" Watson did the twirling for the visiting team and was deadly effective. Two of the three hits made from his offerings came in the second inning when Donahar doubled and scored on Everham's single. This was the A. A.'s only tally of the fray.

Stackhouse was the only player of the Hulmeville club to connect for an extra base hit, having a two-bagger to his credit.

On the Parkland field, Parkland A. A. could not solve the slants of "Eddie" Sullivan and they went down to a shut-out defeat at the hands of the Hibernians. Final tabulations were Hibernians, 5; Parkland, 0.

Post Awaits Repairs To His Plane; Flier Is Impatient

FLAT, Alaska, July 21.—(INS)—Undaunted by the near disaster which overtook him after he had successfully negotiated the most dangerous part of his solo flight around the world, Wiley Post waited impatiently here today for completion of repairs on his plane so he could resume his dash to New York.

The running gear and propeller of the "Winnie Mae" which had carried him safely four-fifths of the way round the globe were damaged when Post made a forced landing here last yesterday after being lost for hours while enroute from Khabarovsk, Siberia, to Fairbanks in the worst flying weather in months.

Post was uninjured and although on the verge of utter physical exhaustion, insisted upon starting immediate repairs to his plane. A machinist on a dredge in the Iditarod River who saw him make the forced landing came to his aid and Joe Crosson, noted Alaskan Airways pilot, and two mechanics flew here from Fairbanks, 350 miles northwest, to assist. They brought a new propeller.

Because of the long Arctic daylight, Post hoped repairs could be completed for an early morning take-off.

He was greatly upset over the time lost by his forced landing here and extremely anxious to be on his way to New York.

He felt he still had a chance to crack the record which he and Harold Gatty set two years ago for the round-the-world flight—8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes.

The damage to his plane was not regarded as serious.

After he had been assured that the repairs would be made Post was prevailed upon to get some sleep at the Army Signal Corps station here.

His arrival was completely unexpected at this little gold mining settlement. Hopelessly lost, he sighted the emergency landing field and dropped out of the clouds late in the afternoon. Surprised residents saw his plane, caught in a cross wind, career and nose over at one end of the field.

CAMP BUCCOU TO OPEN JULY 30TH FOR FOUR WEEKS

Hundreds of Bucks County Boys Have Enjoyed It For Seven Seasons

NOW HAVE NEW POLICY

Use of All Facilities for Small Sum; Lads May Pay With Food

Camp Buccou opens July 30th for a four-week season. It is the seventh year of the camp where hundreds of Bucks County boys have camped on fall and winter week-ends, and during the summer season. A considerable number of the troops will have spent a week-end at Buccou before the 30th. Every week, one of the county troops makes it "the mecca of the camper."

A new policy has been developed to meet the present financial situation. Campers will be permitted the use of all of the facilities for an outlay of 25 cents. Twenty-five cents will be devoted to sanitary precautions and some program supplies. This will make it possible for the poorest boy to have at least one week in God's Great Out-of-Doors away from his complicated every day environment.

During the past two months, in addition to the usual field work, Scout Executive William F. Livermore has conducted ten group meetings of Scout Leaders in all parts of the county in a specialization course in troop camping. The course included instruction and discussion of the problems of organizing the troop for summer camping, equipment, records, advancement, program, health, sanitation, and food. Detailed charts were carefully studied on the problems of before camp, during camp, and after camp as it affected the boy, the parent, the leader, the committee, and the camp.

The group meetings have been followed by personal interviews with each leader to discuss, and plan whereby every boy in his unit will be able to be at Buccou by either providing cash for his food, part cash and part food or just food. In this way, the poorer boy will be able to go through his effort in raising a garden as his share of the food cost.

The program will not be conducted by an all-season staff but will be developed from among the troop leaders who are at camp. On Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings all of the leaders will gather at 10 p. m. with Scout Executive Livermore for a discussion period on "Problems of the day, and looking forward to tomorrow."

All of the former precautions of health and safety are being provided for as in previous years. Without the advantage of a camp staff, each troop leader will become a safety man for the protection of his group. Each boy is to receive a health examination before coming to camp so as to guard his health, and for the protection of others who are camping with him.

The big change will be in the use of Good Times Hall as a supply and administration center. Good Times Hall will not be used as a mess hall during this season. It will serve as headquarters, store, rest house, library, and for rainy day activities.

Instead of having a chef for camp, each group will have its own cook. Each troop is selecting seven boys who will under the guidance of their mother before coming to camp learn how to cook the three meals while they are on duty. Cooking will be done in outdoor kitchens, and is going to provide a needed training for many campers. The experience of purchasing, preparing, cooking, and serving the food along with the solving of the problems of sanitation and refrigeration will teach many principles of economy, and will also lead to a greater appreciation of "what mother is doing."

Troops from all over the county are selecting camp sites on the 84-acre reservation. Leaders are rallying willingly to the extra work involved in preparing their unit to have the camping experience. Parents are being visited by troop committeemen to educate them for their part in getting their boy to camp.

JOB-SEEKERS WARNED

Reviving business activities are likely to cause many persons to "hit the road" seeking employment.

Work naturally becomes available in some communities before it does in others. It should be remembered, however, that virtually every community has in its own large numbers of unemployed. The latter are on the ground. When any new jobs are thrown open, they will get them.

There are thousands of college and high school graduates now seeking work. If it is not immediately available in their home towns, many of them will seek it in other towns and cities. New York, with its glamour of wealth, is likely to become the goal of many. This possibility has caused the New York welfare council to issue a warning against this course.

"Unless you have friends or relatives here, an assured job or money enough to last a year, don't come to New York," it says.

The metropolis already is filled with thousands of idle men and women.

The New York warning is not applicable alone to that city. It should have a general application. The man wanting a job now would do well to remain in his own community, unless he has a definite promise or prospects in another town. Business generally is picking up, and eventually, it is to be hoped, the improvement will extend to all communities, when plenty of jobs will be available.

Until then, aimless wandering in search of work will continue to be a hazardous undertaking.

FLOOD-RIDDEN CHINA

China again is engaged in battling one of its ancient enemies.

Millions of lives are endangered by waters of the Hwang and the Yangtze rivers which have left their banks and are inundating cities and countryside. Crowds pack the temples to pray and burn incense, and in some places Buddhas are hauled through the streets to permit those unable to enter the temples to intercede for preservation from the rising waters.

Flood and famine long have preyed at irregular intervals on this unhappy country. It is almost a rare occurrence for the people not to be fighting one or the other of these or seeking to check foreign aggression.

The number of lives lost in floods and famines runs high into the millions. Dykes have been constructed along the streams given to overflowing their banks with disastrous results, but neither these nor their gods have saved the people from fresh outbreaks. Greater engineering skill than that yet brought to bear upon the problem might prove effective in conquering the flood peril, but this remains to be tried. The people seem satisfied to place their trust in dykes and prayers.

If the country ever becomes united under a stable government, flood-control probably will be tackled as the major domestic problem. It is not to be believed that the Chinese will be content forever to remain in peril of untamed rivers.

A clear conscience is the trump card in the game of life.

The little thing that saves lots of money is the word "no."

"PREMIERE"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

COPYRIGHT - 1932 BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Attending the premiere of her latest motion picture, beautiful Leni Lueska, the star, is confronted by a shabby, emaciated man, who emerges from the crowd crying, "Leni! It is I, Karl Kruger. Do you want me to tell the whole world?" Leni turns white. She tells the man she will talk with him inside. Lucky Cavanaugh, a gambler, fascinated by Leni's beauty, saunters into the theatre after Kruger. He prevents Kruger from making a scene and has him placed in a private office until after the show. Cavanaugh then bribes an usher to seat him in Leni's box. During the performance Douglas Gates, Leni's elderly escort, proposes to her. She is tempted to accept him to get away from everything.

CHAPTER THREE

"I'm afraid you are too thrilled with success to listen to me," he half-smiled, "but I shall try to be patient."

Leni touched his hand. "Thank you, my dear," she said softly. "You are so nice."

So nice and nothing more, thought Leni in her tense heart. The touch of his hand gave her no strength. Tonight it was strength she needed to face Karl Kruger; vigor of mind and courageous wisdom.

There must be no giving way to blind despair, no surrendering to panic that paralyzes clear thinking. By an immense effort of the will it would be necessary to gather her forces for the ordeal. And the sooner the better. It would be dangerous to avoid seeing Kruger. She would have to face him immediately and forestall by whatever means possible the menace spawning in his murky brain.

"I am going to slip out of the box for a little while," Leni said to Gates, drawing her cloak around her shoulders. "Please—I want to be alone."

To Gates this was a display of imperious temperament which he was too polite to combat. He rose and stood aside; the small rustle of her leaving distracted no one's attention. Leni's talking ghost on the screen already had achieved a recognition that absorbed all interest from his human original.

Unseen and unconsidered, she tiptoed up a darkened aisle to an obscure rendezvous where past and future moved swiftly toward fatal collision.

Lucky Cavanaugh turned his head and watched her until she disappeared. Then he turned and saw her again on the screen, while a trace of the fragrance she wore still lingered in the box.

The office into which Karl Kruger had been led was one of several on the second floor above the foyer. By day it was used by the press agent and was luxurious in the Hollywood tradition with thick rugs, mahogany and leather.

Quite different, indeed, from the adjoining room to which a connecting door led. Next door there was nothing of swank. An adding machine on a plain table, several chairs, a stack of ledgers and a substantial steel safe were about all. The door of the safe was swung open and a serious-looking man knelt before it. On the floor beside him was the night's receipts, the paper currency in bandied sheafs and the silver in two canvas bags.

The man on the floor was not a burglar. He was the theatre treasurer and he was about to lock up the money carefully for the night. The real burglars, who were equally methodical, lurked behind the last row of seats in the gallery. They were dressed in the uniforms of ushers and had crawled down from the roof. Their undertaking was precarious but they had left very little to chance. Every detail had been planned to theatrical perfection.

"What's the matter—afraid I'm going to bite you?" said Kruger without removing the cigarette from his mouth.

Outside a side door downstairs there was a third, also disguised as an usher, who was the look-out. He resembled somewhat the genuine article who might have sneaked out to drag on a cigarette.

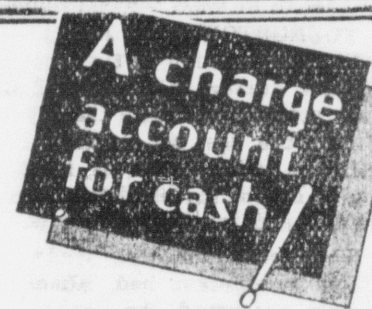

According to the burglar's plans the room adjoining the treasurer's office should have been empty, but no safe-blowers, however foresighted, could have predicted the catapulting of Karl Kruger into the scheme. Nor, for that matter, Leni Lueska, who made inquiries and was escorted by the house manager himself to the room occupied by the waiting Kruger. These events annoyed but did not dissuade the determined safe experts.

The treasurer had locked the office and gone. So far, so good. It was child's play for the robbers to enter the office with a skeleton key and wait, still as mice in the dark, until the unexpected conference next door broke up. The wall was thick and the connecting door heavy. Kruger's and Leni's voices were but dim bubbles. In any case more than an hour remained before it would be time to explode the safe.

This explosion was to be a matter of accurate timing, a feat without precedent. Leni's screen picture was called "Madelon" and it dealt with the story of a little French coquette who followed her popu into the trenches in 1914. In the sixth reel, the picture reached its climax during a terrific bombardment from German heavy artillery.

At a preview in Santa Barbara the previous week the sound effect had been so violent the audience was deafened. Windows had rattled and chandeliers shaken. It was the loudest bombardment ever screened and a mere safe blowing, to be let

Celebrated Architect To Speak at Sarobia Theatre

EDDINGTON, July 21—
Claude Bragdon, celebrated architect and artist, who will speak on "The Master of Revels" at Sarobia Theatre tomorrow night, was born in Oberlin, O., in 1866. Graduating from Oswego high school in 1884, he served architectural apprenticeships in both New York and Buffalo, and practiced architecture thereafter in Rochester, N. Y. New York Central Station and Rochester Chamber of Commerce are among the buildings in Rochester which he has built.

Mr. Bragdon is an active member of that group of artists who are revolutionizing modern stage-craft. His scenic productions of "Cyrano," "Othello," "Hamlet," and "Macbeth" for Walter Hampden are thought by the most competent critics to be as fine as anything yet shown upon the American stage. He has given particular attention to the lighting effects and to the development of an art of mobile color. For three successive summers he was the "Master of Light" at the Song and Light festivals in Central Park, New York. He has written numerous books dealing with the fine arts and philosophy.

On the evenings of July 28th and 29th there will be staged at Sarobia three one-act plays, directed by Clyde Robinson. These will be: "Maker of Dreams" (Oliphant Downs); "The Intruder" (Maurice Maeterlinck); "Moonshine" (Arthur Hopkins).

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

WE, as Americans, do not realize how fortunate we are to have all the peaches we can eat without straining our food budgets. Frequently in England they cost a shilling apiece.

This week ushers in the real peach season and it is the time to enjoy them in all the variety of ways in which they can be served; whole, sliced, in tarts or pies, shortcake, gelatin desserts and ice cream. The woman who likes to can her own peaches can also begin to do so either this week or next. Pickled whole peaches, like watermelon rind, are delicious. Use vinegar, sugar and a bag of whole pickling spice.

There is little difference in cost between good home made jelly and those you can buy. If you prefer to make your own, currents are here to open the jelly season and their season is short.

WIDE SHOULDER-LINE SPORTED IN FIRST STYLISH FUR COATS

By Alice Langelier
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS.—First fall coats further the fashionable wide shoulder-line and sport dear little cherub wings advocated by the smart designers.

Sometimes they appear in the form of rounded and slightly stiffened flaps placed just behind the shoulder at the armhole; again they may be the prolongation of the sleeve. Worth uses them in lovely black astrakhan which also edged the sleeves and appears in a wide band at the hemline.

Schiaparelli uses basket-weave woolen in water-lily green for her first fall coat, with the sleeves open at the top in funnel effect giving most curious wing pieces. The dress to wear under it is of water-lily green silk canvas.

First fall coats may have straight standing collars or the shoulder line may be slightly prolonged into a collar effect. They may even be completely collarless with the collar or scarf of the frock beneath helping out the neckline.

New long fall coats at Rasmus', one of Paris' smartest tailors, cater to the demand for the wasp waistline accomplished by pinch darts from the underside when belts are not indicated. Shoulders here are just medium and collars usually close in two or three ways thus making the coat useful for morning and afternoon both.

Black, brick, brown and beige, the new "peach-skin" tint and string tones are the favorites for the beautiful fall cloths. Fur trim harmonizes with them, especially the lovely shaded Indian lambs favored by this house.

SMART NEW RIDING COSTUMES ARE TRIM AND TIGHT-FITTING

Slackness Not Tolerated; Classic Habit One of Most Becoming

By Alice Langeller
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
PARIS—(INS)—Neatness is never neglected in smart riding costumes this summer. Slackness is not tolerated and anything verging on slight slovenliness is thoroughly discouraged. Trimness in the saddle is highly approved, making the classic habit one of the most becoming outfits the reasonable good-looking woman can wear. Mademoiselle Lise Flamin, daughter of the former French Minister of Finance, is to be seen in the smart bridle-paths of the Bois almost any fine morning wearing a very neat habit, mid-grey in shade, with simple white shirt-bow, strictly tailored, with white bow-tie and grey bowler hat.

Another smart French "amazone" is wearing black cloth cut on classic season.

lines with wrap-over riding skirt and white stock tie, the conventional habit.

Still another comes of beige and brown suiting with breeches, soft collar and tie. The hat is in brown summerweight felt to tone with the costume but bears no resemblance to the bowler, being a modified pill-box type. Many French riders still cling to the riding-skirt, finding it far more feminine and attractive, but no matter what the style the fair rider chooses she must be sure of neatness this

OUR DAILY FOOD

By JUDGE GORDON

CANNED FOODS

TODAY we can change the old saw "Out of the pan and into the fire" to read "Out of the can and on to the fire." The old saw spells loss and disaster, the new offers the housewife more free time, good food, health for her family and a lightened strain on her food budget.

Canned foods have become the bulwark of the American diet. And rightly so, for they are healthful and economical of both time and money. The canners use the slogan "Canned foods are fresh foods." This is true, for most canneries are situated in the heart of the growing districts so that the freshly picked foods may be sealed in the can within a few hours—never more than twenty-four and often in two or three after picking. Only your own garden can give you equally fresh foods.

Your own garden truck, however, such as peas, beans and corn, etc., is not graded except as "too old." But each can of peas, beans, corn, and all fruits and vegetables, commercially canned, is carefully graded as to size and maturity and then labeled so that you can read and choose according to your needs whether you wish fancy, or choice, or one of the lower gradings.

All these grades are wholesome and each has its place. The less fancy canned vegetables make just as good soups as fancy or choice and cost very much less.

Modern methods of canning successfully retain the qualities which are vital to health. Indeed it is entirely possible to live healthfully on canned foods alone if it were necessary, but in these United States we have such a wealth of fresh foods available at most seasons that we blend our diets of raw, fresh-cooked, and canned food.

Almost every imaginable food is available in cans including milk in several forms, fresh fruits and vegetables of almost every variety, various meats and meat products, nutmeats, olives and relishes, and fish in variety. In addition canned soup is more used than home-made, entrees of most sorts are available for the kitchenette cook, breads and desserts and more things than there is space to mention.

"The accomplished housewife" suggests that a canned foods dinner might be planned as follows:

Canned Grapefruit Cup
Olives Pickles
Roast Canned Chicken with Gravy
Canned Sweet Potatoes (Canned)
Creamed (Canned) Peas
Cranberry Jelly
Pump Pudding Coffee
Hard Sauce
A different type of meal might be chosen as:
Canned Mock Turtle Soup
Baked Beans (Canned)
Brown Bread (Canned)
Tomato Ketchup
Canned Asparagus Mayonnaise
Canned Fresh Fruits

Henry Ford

TO PEOPLE WHO WANT SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

There are some things we refuse to do to sell a car. We like sales, but fair-dealing and the confidence of our customers are desirable, too.

For one thing, we refuse to poison anyone's mind against another make of car. We know what our car is and what it will do, and we are ready to tell you about that. But to imply defects in another car is not our business.

We have done our utmost to encourage intelligent buying of motor cars by showing purchasers how to protect their own interests. All that a good producer asks is a customer who knows quality when he sees it. An intelligent purchaser will speedily conclude that only a bad product requires bad sales methods.

We refuse, also, to adopt the role of tricky trader—that is, pretending to offer you a larger trade-in allowance, and taking it away from you in some other way. Ford trade-in values are high, but we do not make fictitious allowances in order to get a sale which may be otherwise disadvantageous to the buyer. Our dealers take used cars upon a system of values, not by haggling or barter.

In this world no one gets something for nothing, although there are many ways of making people think that they do. The sure way to get value for value is, first, by being yourself willing to deal on that basis, and second, by dealing with a concern that has no other policy.

We refuse to keep dinning in your ears that the Ford V-8 is the best, most economical, lowest-priced car. That is claimed for several cars. Obviously it cannot be true of all. There comes a point where claims and adjectives and all advertising hysteria disappears in its own fog. Personally, I prefer facts.

We say the new Ford V-8 is the best car we have made.

We say that our 8-cylinder car is as economical to operate as any lower number of cylinders.

We say that we have always been known as the makers of good cars and that the many good, well-balanced qualities of our present car places it at the head of our line to date.

Anyone wishing to do business with us on these principles will find our word and the quality of our product to be A-1. What we say about economy, operation and durability will stand good anywhere.

"INDIES" DROP SIXTH GAME IN SUCCESSION

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight
EDGELEY vs. DAMP WASH
(St. Ann's Field)

The Independents dropped their six consecutive game of the second half of the Bristol Twilight League on St. Ann's field last night when they were outscored, 12-8, by St. Ann's, in a slugging match.

The "Indies" outthit the winners, 12 to 11, but had six runners left on the bags. St. Ann's hit hard in the pinches, leaving only three runners stranded.

The losers gave a great exhibition of consecutive hitting in the fourth inning when the first six batters hit safely. This established a new league record for consecutive base hitting. During this rally the losers counted six runs and decreased the 12-1 lead the Saints were sporting at the time.

Every player on the winning team made at least one hit. Juno led the hitters with a double and home run in four trips to the plate. Fields had two singles to continue his hitting streak.

"Teddie" Tosti started on the mound for the losers and left after pitching to two batters. He walked both of these and was replaced by Avella.

Tosti was charged with the defeat. "Charlie" Whyno, again was on the peak for the winners and with the exception of the fourth inning was deadly effective. Avella made three out of three off the St. Ann's twirler. Whyno did not issue a pass.

Tulio's catch of Peio's line drive in the fifth was the fielding feature of the game.

TRIO OF TILTS PLAYED IN SUBURBAN LEAGUE

BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE

Last Night's Results
CUBANS, 10; FURMAN, 1
NEWPORTVILLE, 10; ELEPHANTS, 8
NEWPORT ROAD, 9; CROYDON, 2

Newport Road Men's Club and the Cubans continued their deadlock for first place in the Bristol Suburban League by winning their frays last night. Newportville, however, sprang the surprise of the night when they downed the White Elephants, 10-8.

The Newport Road Men's Club with Milt Davis on the hill did not have much opposition from the Croydon nine. Croydon used Johnny Corrigan on the mound but he went bad and was socked soundly by the Newporters.

Twelve hits sang from the bats of the Newport team, Clancy leading the hitters with three hits in three times up, while Oppman, besides playing a flashy game at short, connected for three hits in four trips to the plate.

The Cubans had something easy in the Furman Boys' Club. "Jim" Spencer, twirling for the colored boys, had the Furman blanked until the ninth, when a hit, a fielder's choice and a fly scored a run.

The Furman made but two hits off Spencer, one going to Cummons and the other to Cooper. "Johnny" Long led the Cuban attack on Mulligan with four hits.

Newportville A. A. upset the dope by scoring a surprise win over the White Elephants who are resting in third place. Four runs in the third and five more in the fourth put victory into the Newportville team's hands.

The Elephants rallied against Beecher in the sixth and counted seven runs but the rally died with the tying runs on the bases. Kirk and White pitched for the Elephants.	r	h	e	a	e

Can They Regain the Davis Cup?

By BURNLEY

Wilmer ALLISON
--MUCH DEPENDS ON HIS PLAY IN THE SINGLES MATCHES.

HEADED by one of the greatest champions the United States has produced—Ellsworth Vines, the American Davis Cup team is all set for the last obstacle that stands in its way to meet France for the great and glorious trophy of the international tennis world.

Vines himself is in top form, and his stunning victory over Cochet in the Wimbledon championships has given him great confidence, as far as confronting the French team is concerned.

It was Bill Tilden who rather trickled cold water on the American team's Davis Cup chances a while ago, when he said that he expected that Cochet would win both of his singles matches if the two teams came to grips in the Cup finals. He may have reversed his opinion since the Wimbledon competitions.

Vines and Wilmer Allison will carry the responsibility for the singles engagements for America, while Johnny Van Ryn and George Lott will do business for the United States on the doubles side of the ledger. Lott is considered the greatest doubles player in the world.

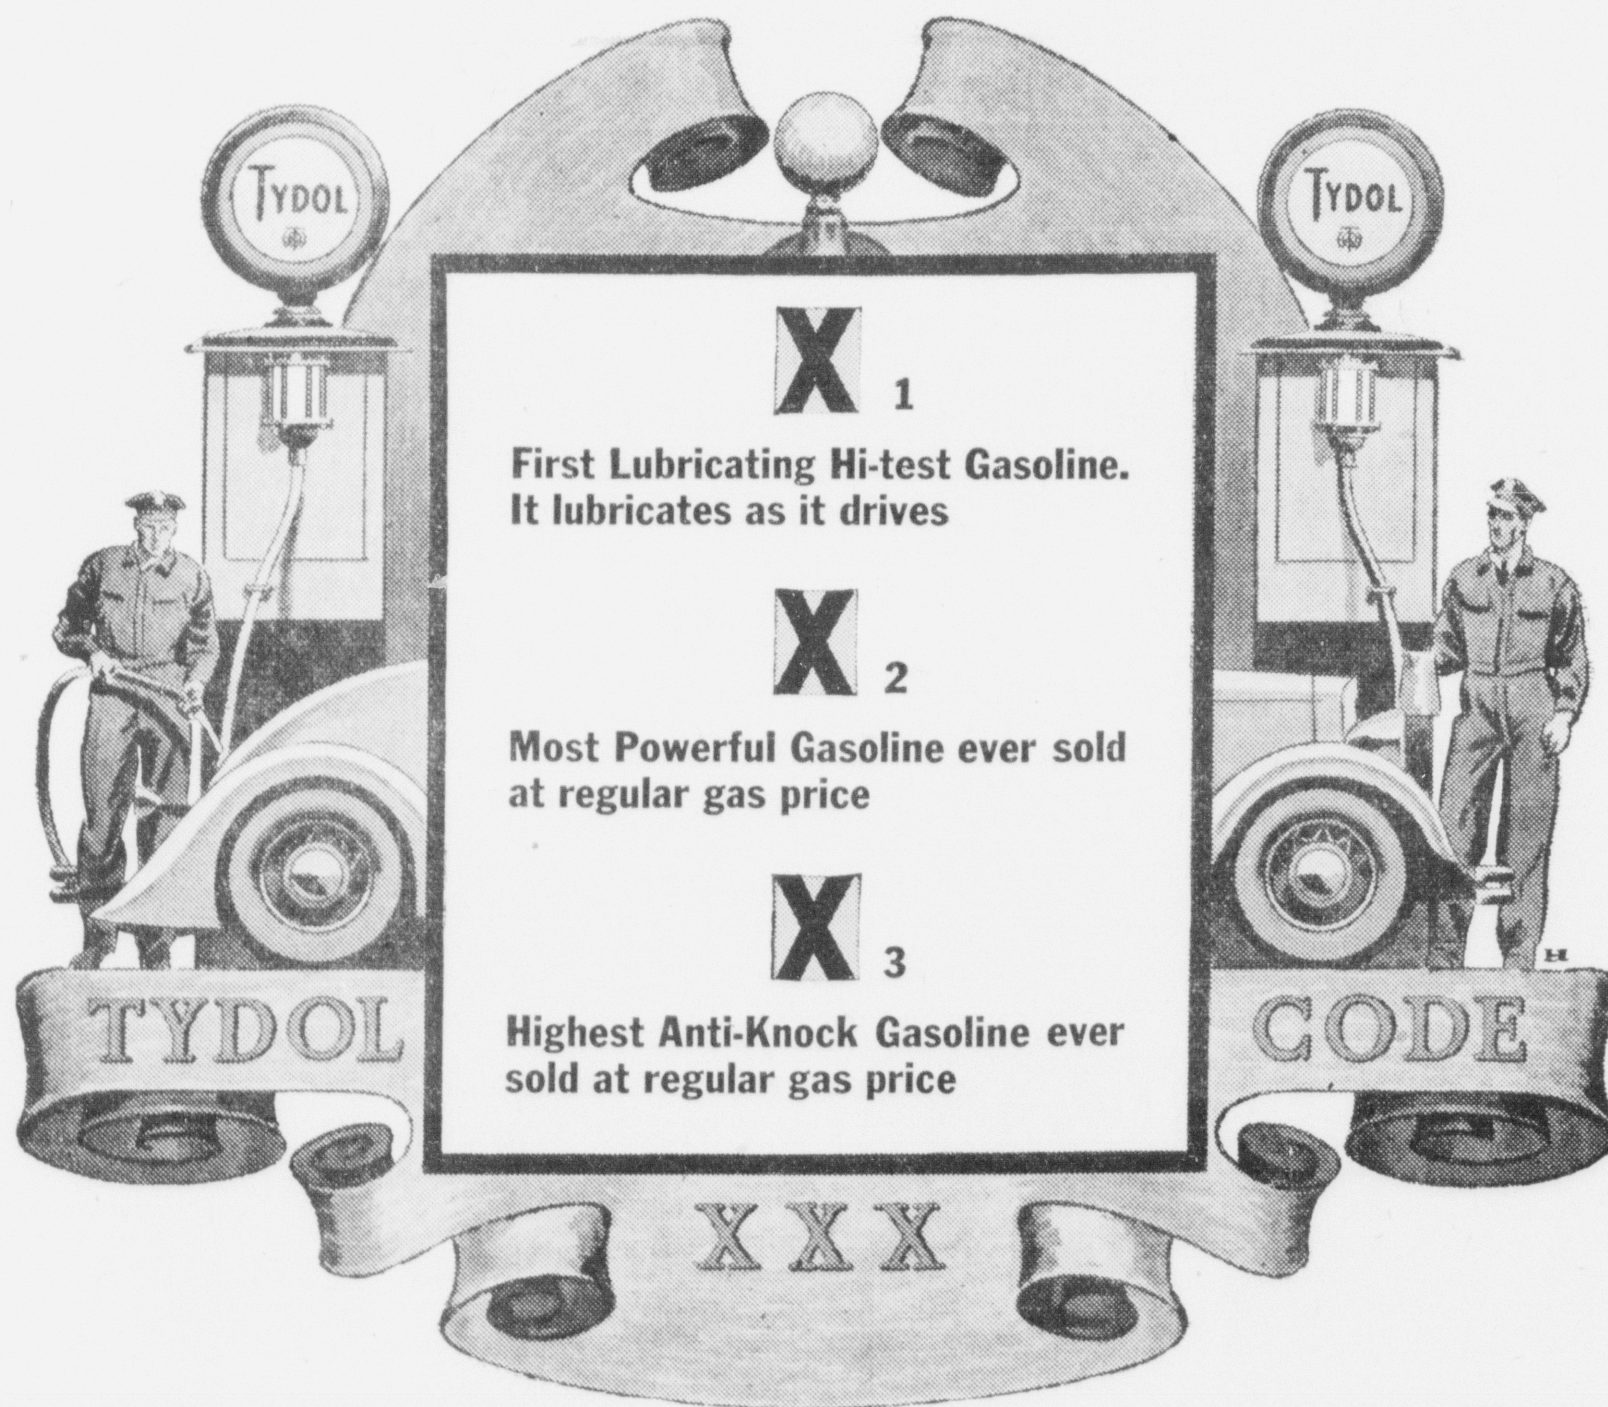

The fine form of the American team may be credited in no small measure to the coaching of Mercer Beasley. Allison told reporters a short while ago that the chances of the team were improved twenty percent by Beasley's work.

Beasley seems to have a genius for being able to find the flaws in the playing of his charges and also—what is more important—to be able to convince his stars that they are erring. That's a tall order, but Beasley has been doing that.

It is Beasley who showed Vines what was wrong with his driving, and Allison also took many a profitable lesson from the canny mentor. The entire team is strong in its praise of this coach who, they say, can correct a player's faults more quickly than any other man.

And so the big team from America faces the European Zone winners for the right to challenge France for that very valuable mug

Tydol writes a new code in Gasoline Values

TODAY, American business is responding to the call for new codes . . . to hasten the return of prosperity.
